Introduction

Through the Publications Assistance Program, the federal government subsidizes the cost of mailing eligible periodical publications to subscribers and retailers within Canada. The Program also negotiates a reduced postal rate for inter-library loans, making library books more accessible to Canadian readers. Canada Post Corporation is an active partner in the Program.

For well over a hundred years, publishers and readers have benefitted from postal distribution assistance. During the fiscal year 1999-2000, the Program subsidized the delivery of over 230 million copies of more than 1,300 different periodical publications to people in all regions of Canada.

By lowering the cost of distributing Canadian publications -- and thereby the cost to readers -- the Publications Assistance Program contributes to the success of Canadian publishers in reaching Canadian audiences with local, regional, national and international news and an abundance of Canadian information of general and special interest.

Principal Objectives of the Publications Assistance Program

- ▶ To encourage the wide and affordable dissemination of Canadian publications to Canadian readers;
- ▶ to recognize the important role played by small community weekly newspapers in rural communities;
- ▶ to support the vitality of English and French minority communities and of Canada's cultural diversity through minority official language and ethnic weekly newspapers; and,
- ▶ to make library books available to those whose access to public libraries is made difficult by geography or physical limitation.

Eligibility Criteria

Publications eligible for the Program include:

- ▶ periodicals -- magazines and journals;
- ▶ weekly newspapers -- small community, minority official language, ethnic, national, regional; and
- ▶ commercial newsletters.

To be eligible, publications must meet certain requirements outlined in detail in the Applicant's Registration Guide in hard copy or on the departmental website:

http://www.pch.gc.ca/culture/cult_ind/pap/english.htm.

Key criteria include:

- ▶ Canadian ownership and control;
- ▶ paid circulation comprising at least 50 per cent of total circulation, through bona fide subscriptions and single copy sales through retailers/newsstands;
- ▶ a significant portion of original material produced by Canadians; and
- ▶ a maximum of 70 per cent advertising.

Meeting Program Objectives in 1999-2000

Program subsidies for 1999-2000 totalling $53.9 million were contributed by the Department of Canadian Heritage and Canada Post Corporation. These funds supported the distribution of over 230 million copies of Canadian publications. In addition, Canada Post absorbed an estimated $2.4 million through the Library Book Rate for over 600,000 inter-library mailings of library books.

Chart 1 - Subsidized Titles by Type of Publication

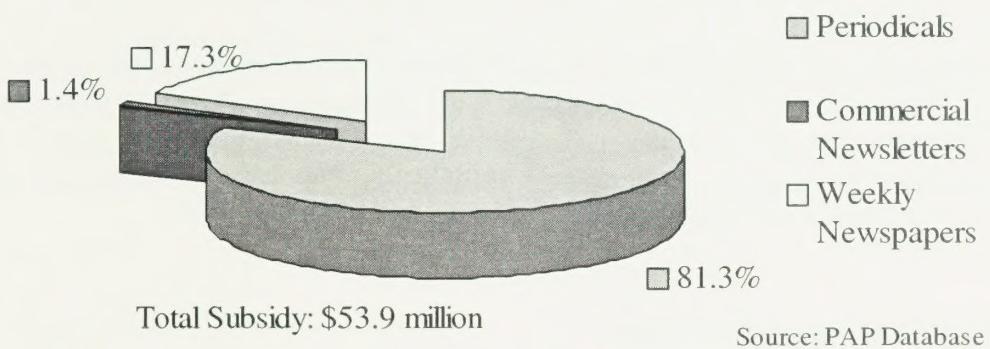

The Publications Assistance Program provided support to 1,348 individual publications during 1999-2000. As Chart 1 illustrates, periodical publications were the single largest group of beneficiaries: just over 800 periodical titles accounted for 59.7 per cent of all publications receiving a subsidy. The periodical category is primarily made up of magazines -- general and special interest consumer, business and trade, farm and religious -- but also includes literary and scholarly journals. One third of the titles (448) receiving Program funds were weekly newspapers, mostly small community weeklies. Commercial newsletters made up the remaining seven per cent of Program beneficiaries.

Meeting Program Objectives in 1999-2000 (cont'd.)

Periodical publications received 81.3 per cent of all subsidy funds. (See Chart 2). This relatively high benefit to periodical publications is largely attributable to general interest consumer magazines which are quite numerous and, more importantly, tend to be published weekly or monthly for large national circulations. There were more than twice as many special interest consumer magazines supported as general interest, 273 and 131 respectively, but special interest magazines are published less frequently and circulated to a smaller readership. Scholarly journals, with even more targeted readership, made up 18.7 per cent of subsidized periodicals but received less than one per cent of the funds granted to these publications.

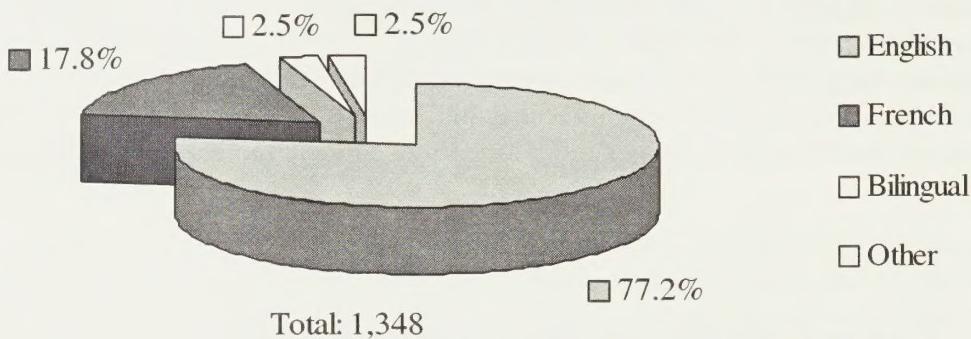

Chart no 2 - Subsidy Allocation by Type of Publication

The various types of weekly newspapers shared 17 per cent of program grants. Almost half ($4.4 million) went to small community papers (i.e., published in towns of under 10,000) and the balance to other types of weeklies. The small community weeklies accounted for over 90 per cent of newspaper beneficiaries and for two thirds of subsidized copies. Their per-copy mailing costs, however, were much lower than for papers mailed nationally or regionally. Commercial newsletters, which generally have fewer pages and weigh less, received less than two per cent of program support in 1999-2000. (See Figure 2.)

Meeting Program Objectives in 1999-2000 (cont'd.)

Chart 3 - Subsidized Titles by Language

Source: PAP Database

English-language publications made up 77.2 per cent of Program beneficiaries (see Chart 3); just over half of the English titles were periodicals. On the other hand, among the 17.8 per cent of registered titles published in French, the vast majority -- over 90 per cent -- were periodicals. Almost all of the bilingual titles receiving Program support were periodicals. Publications in languages other than English or French were an even mix of periodicals and weekly newspapers.

Administrative Developments

1999-2000 was a year of administrative consolidation. The re-registration process for the more than 1800 publications transferred to Canadian Heritage from Canada Post was completed. Over the course of the year 142 titles which did not meet Program criteria were de-registered and 86 new applications were assessed.

Program officials revised and reformatted the program registration form and guide in anticipation of proposed changes to Section 19 of the Income Tax Act and related definitions for Canadian periodical and Canadian newspaper. PAP criteria still require no less than 75 per cent Canadian ownership and control.

Improved information collection and retrieval systems broadened the scope, accessibility, and timeliness of data. As a result, Program officials are equipped with more effective information resources and tools. Up-to-date mailing data from Canada Post allows for timely analysis and better forecasting of demands on Program finances.

Following the completion of the re-registration process, steps were taken to develop monitoring and reporting mechanisms as part of a maintenance system for the program. The maintenance system, to be implemented in 2000-2001, will:

- ▶ confirm that Program beneficiaries continue to meet all program requirements;
- ▶ help measure Program efficiency and effectiveness;
- ▶ provide timely data on industry trends; and,
- ▶ contribute to knowledge and understanding of the periodical publishing industry that will be valuable in developing future publishing policies and initiatives as well as determining refinements to current programs.

Summary of Program Results 1999-2000

The Publications Assistance Program continued to make a substantial contribution to Canadian publishing by supporting the distribution of a wide variety of titles among Canadian readers. In so doing, the Program advanced the broader objectives of the Department of Canadian Heritage in building industry infrastructure and in connecting Canadians among their diverse communities and across vast distances. By complementing other federal government initiatives in support of the Canadian periodical publishing industry, the Program strengthened the capacity for Canadian creators and producers to achieve excellence and compete in a challenging and changing economy.

L'amélioration des systèmes d'information a permis d'élargir la portée, l'accessibilité et l'obtention de données à jour. En conséquence, les responsables du Programme disposent de ressources et d'outils plus efficaces. Des données à jour sur les envois de Postes Canada permettent d'effectuer une analyse en temps opportun et de mieux prévoir les demandes de financement dans le cadre du Programme.

Après avoir établi le processus de renégociement, des étapes ont été suivies pour concevoir des mécanismes de surveillance et d'établissement de rapports qui feront partie du système de maîtrise du Programme. Celui-ci sera mis en oeuvre en 2000-2001 pour :

- confirmer que les bénéficiaires continuent de satisfaire à toutes les exigences du programme;
- aider à mesurer l'efficacité et le rendement du Programme;
- fournir de l'information en temps opportun sur les tendances dans l'industrie;
- contribuer à une meilleure connaissance de l'industrie de l'édition de périodiques qui sera très utile pour élaborer des initiatives et des politiques sur l'édition et pour appuyer des améliorations au programme en cours.

Le Programme d'aide aux publications contribue encore de façon substantielle à l'édition canadienne en appuyant la distribution d'une grande variété de titres aux lecteurs canadiens. De fait, le Programme contribue à l'attente des grands objectifs du ministère du Patrimoine canadien qui visent à bâti une infrastructure industrielle et à créer des liens entre les Canadiens et les Canadiens vivant à l'étranger à travers le pays. En tant que complément des autres initiatives du gouvernement fédéral à l'appui de l'industrie de l'édition des périodiques canadiens, le Programme rend les créateurs dans une économie en plus aptes à atteindre l'excellence et à faire face à la concurrence dans un marché mondial des périodiques canadiens.

Sommaire des résultats du Programme : 1999-2000

L'amélioration des procédures administratives et l'obtention de données à jour sont deux éléments essentiels pour assurer la rentabilité du Programme. Ces deux éléments sont étroitement liés et contribuent à l'efficacité et à l'efficience du Programme. Ils sont également importants pour assurer la qualité et la fiabilité des informations fournies aux utilisateurs.

Le Programme d'aide aux publications contribue à l'industrie canadienne de l'édition de périodiques en plusieurs façons. Il aide à la promotion et à la vente de périodiques canadiens à l'étranger, ce qui contribue à leur succès mondial. Il aide également à la recherche et au développement dans l'industrie canadienne de l'édition de périodiques, ce qui favorise l'innovation et l'expansion de l'industrie. Le Programme d'aide aux publications contribue également à la formation et au perfectionnement des travailleurs de l'industrie canadienne de l'édition de périodiques, ce qui contribue à leur succès professionnel et à leur contribution à l'industrie canadienne de l'édition de périodiques.

Les responsables du Programme ont revisé et restitué le formulaire d'inscription et le guide du Programme en fonction des changements proposés à l'article 19 de la Loi de l'impôt sur le revenu touchant à la propriété, au contrôle et aux définitions communes des périodes et des journaux canadiens. Les critères du PAP relatif à la propriété et au contrôle canadiens d'un moins 75 % sont maintenus.

Le programme 1999-2000 a été une période d'unification administrative. Le processus de renégociation a pris fin et s'est soldé par le transfert de plus de 1800 publications de Postes Canada à Patriomine canadien. Au cours de l'année, 142 titres ont été renommés pour qu'ils ne répondent pas à toutes les exigences du Programme et 86 nouvelles demandes ont été évaluées.

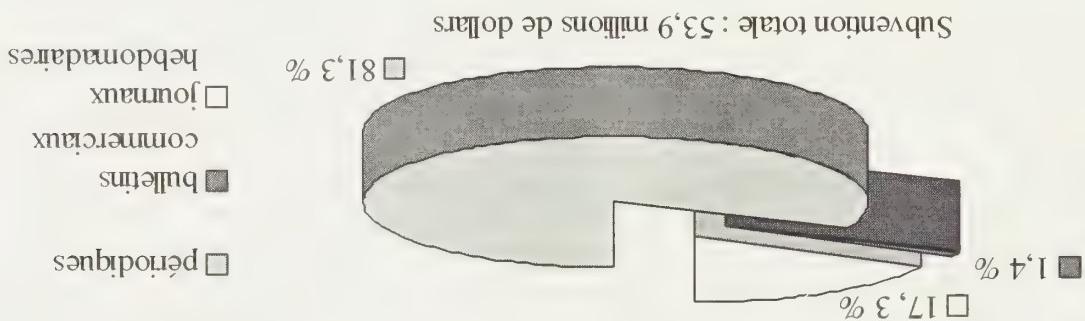

D'autre part, les titres publiés en français sont des périodiques (voir le graphique 3). Une partie des publications de langue anglaise représentent 77,2 % des bénéficiaires du programme et un peu plus de la moitié de ces titres sont des périodiques (voir le graphique 3). D'autre part, les titres publiés en français et représentant 17,8 % des bénéficiaires du programme sont principalement des périodiques (plus de 90 %). Les périodiques représentent également la quasi-totalité des titres bilingues qui regoivent l'appui du Programme. On retrouve presque en nombre égal les périodiques et les journaux publiés dans les langues autres que l'anglais et le français.

Elaboration des procédures administratives

Des sommes versées par le Programme, 17 % sont allées aux différents types de journaux hebdomadiers. Près de la moitié ($4,4 millions) était consacrée aux petits hebdomadiers locaux (c.-à-d. publiés dans les collectivités compactes moins de 10 000 habitants); les autres hebdomadiers se sont partagé le reste. Plus de 90 % des journaux bénéficiant appartenait à la catégorie des petits hebdomadiers locaux. Cette catégorie a publié les deux tiers des exemplaires subventionnés. Cependant, leur couverture d'édition a été inférieure à celle des hebdomadiers nationaux ou régionaux. Les bulletins commerciaux, qui sont en général moins volumineux et plus légers, ont reçu moins de 2 % de l'aide accordée par le Programme au cours de 1999-2000 (voir le graphique 2).

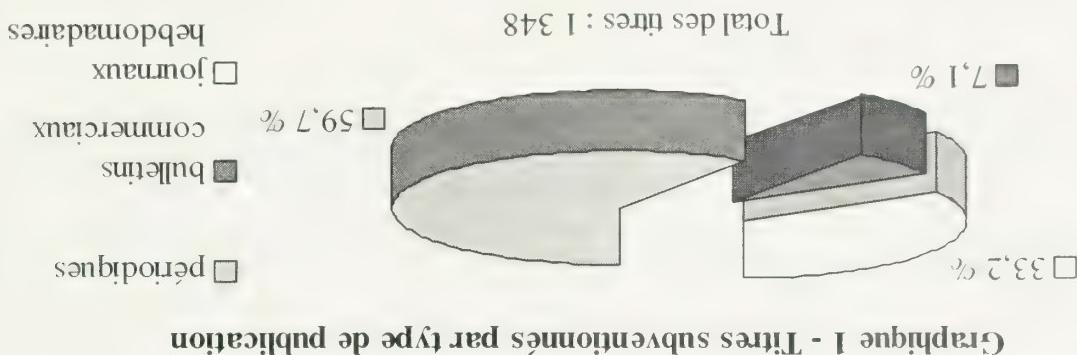

Graphique 2 - Attribution des subventions par type de publication

Les périodiques ont reçu 81,3 % de toutes les subventions (voir le graphique 2). Le montant relativement important qui leur a été accordé est attribuable, en grande partie, au nombre important de revues d'interêt général qui sont, dans l'ensemble, des publications hebdomadaires ou mensuelles. Ces publications à grand volume sont distribuées à l'échelle régionale et nationale. En fait, les revues d'interêt spécialisé sont deux fois plus nombreuses que celles d'intérêt général, 273 et 131 respectivement, mais leur part dans les subventions de l'ordre de 18,7 % des périodiques subventionnés. Les sommes versées par ces publications représentent moins de 1 % des sommes accordées aux périodiques.

Attente des objectifs du Programme en 1999-2000 (suite)

Le tiers (448) des titres ayant reçu des fonds regroupés par les journaux hebdomadaires, surtout des affaires ou professionnelles, archivées et religieuses -- ainsi que des revues littéraires et savantes, journaliers de petites communautés. Les bulletins commerciaux constituent le deuxième 7 % des subventionnés. Ces catégories comprennent surtout des magazines -- interêt général et spécialisé, impératif. En effet, plus de 800 périodiques (59,7 % de toutes les publications) ont reçu une subvention. Il illustre le graphique 1, les périodiques représentent le groupe de bénéficiaires le plus important. Ensuite, plus de 348 publications individuelles ont profité du Programme. Comme d'affaires ou professionnelles, archivées et religieuses -- ainsi que des revues littéraires et savantes.

Graphique 1 - Titrés subventionnés par type de publication

En 1999-2000, les subventions accordées dans le cadre du Programme ont atteint un total de 53,9 millions de dollars. L'argent provient du ministère du Patrimoine canadien et de la Société canadienne des postes. Ces fonds ont permis de distribuer 230 millions d'exemplaires de publications canadiennes. Par ailleurs, Postes Canada a absorbé environ 2,4 millions de dollars grâce au tarif de livres de bibliothèque consenti à plus de 600 000 envois entre bibliothèques.

Atteinte des objectifs du Programme en 1999-2000

- Voici les principaux critères :
- Propriété et contrôle canadiens;
- Le tirage payé inclus au moins 50 % du tirage total, grâce aux abonnements ventilables et aux ventes au numéro en kiosques ou par les détaillants;
- Une partie importante du contenu original est produite par des Canadiens et des Canadiens;
- L'espace publicitaire ne dépasse pas un maximum de 70 % de l'espace total.

Critères d'admissibilité (suite) :

Les publications admissibles doivent satisfaire à certaines exigences (explications détaillées dans le Guide d'énergie et de candidature offertes sur copie papier ou sur le site Web du Ministère : <http://www.pch.gc.ca/culture/cult-Ind/pap/francais.htm>).

- Les publications suivantes sont admissibles au Programme :
 - bulletins commerciaux;
 - périodiques -- magazines et revues;
 - journaux hebdomadaires de petites communautés et de langues officielles en situation minoritaire, journaux hebdomadaires ethniques, nationaux et régionaux;
 - bulletins officiels.

Critères d'admissibilité

- Les bibliothèques publiques en liaison de contraintes géographiques ou d'une mobilité rendre les livres de bibliothèque accessibles à ceux et celles qui ont difficilement accès officielle ou de journaux hebdomadaires ethniques;
- la diversité culturelle du Canada grâce aux journaux hebdomadaires de langue minoritaire soutenir le dynamisme des communautés minoritaires de langue française ou anglaise et collectivités rurales;
- reconnaître le rôle important que jouent les petits journaux hebdomadaires dans les collectivités auxlecteurs canadiens;
- encourager une dissémination de grande envergure et à prix abordable de publications officielles ou de journaux hebdomadaires ethniques;
- aux bibliothèques publiques en liaison de contraintes géographiques ou d'une mobilité rendre les livres de bibliothèque accessibles à ceux et celles qui ont difficilement accès en situation minoritaire, journaux hebdomadaires ethniques, nationaux et régionaux;
- réduire.

Principaux objectifs du Programme d'aide aux publications

En redoublant le coût de la distribution des publications canadiennes -- et, par voie de conséquence, les frais payés par les lecteurs -- le Programme d'aide aux publications permet aux éditeurs de transmettre aux canadiens des nouvelles locales, régionales, nationales et internationales ainsi qu'une abondance d'information canadienne d'intérêt général et spécialisé.

Il y a plus de 100 ans que les éditeurs profitent d'une aide à la distribution par la poste. Au cours de l'année financière 1999-2000, le Programme d'aide aux publications permet la livraison de 230 millions d'exemplaires de plus de 1 300 périodiques à des résidents de toutes les régions du Canada.

Société canadienne des postes participe activement au Programme. Les responsables du Programme négocient également un tarif postal réduit pour les périodes entre bibliothèques, ce qui permet aux lecteurs canadiens d'avoir accès plus facilement aux livres. La distribution par la poste des périodiques admissibles aux abonnements et aux détaillants du Canada, l'expédition par la poste des périodiques admissibles aux abonnements et aux détaillants du Canada, le remboursement par la poste aux publications, le gouvernement fédéral subventionne
